Summary

- Provides an indefinite extension of the NMTC, which expires in 2019.
- Provides an increase in the annual NMTC allocation and indexes future allocation to inflation.

History and Purpose

- The NMTC was authorized in the Community Renewal Tax Relief Act of 2000 (PL 106-554) as part of a bipartisan effort to stimulate investment and economic growth in low income urban and rural communities. By providing a modest tax incentive to private investors, the NMTC increases the flow of capital to businesses and low-income communities.
- NMTC investors receive a tax credit equal to 39 percent of the total Qualified Equity Investment made in a Community Development Entity with the Credit realized over a seven-year period, amounting to 5 percent annually for the first three years and 6 percent in years four through seven. If an investor redeems the NMTC investment before the seven-year term has run its course, all Credits will be recaptured with interest.

Economic Impact

- NMTC investments of $42 billion have generated $80 billion total project financing and about 1,000,000 jobs¹, at a cost to the federal government of less than $20,000 per job.
- More than 72 percent of all NMTC investments have been in communities exhibiting severe economic distress, and in 2017, 23 percent of NMTC projects were in rural areas.
- More than a billion dollars annually goes to community facilities, including nearly 2,000 hospitals, schools, daycare centers, treatment facilities, and other service providers.
- Nearly 1,000 manufacturing and industrial businesses received billions in project financing.
- An independent compliance review recently found that program participants are significantly lowering the cost of capital for borrowers in low-income communities and exceeding statutory and regulatory requirements for the targeting of economic distress.²
